	American Public Power Association	McMinnville Electric System was the first municipal electric utility to use 100 percent BioDiesel as fuel in a two-MW diesel generator. Nashville Electric Service installed transformers filled with soybean-based oil. In the case of a small oil spill, the oil could be left in place to quickly biodegrade. Waverly Light and Power uses soy-based fluid in its pole-top transformers and are retro-filling it's largest transformer with a safer soy-based coolant.
